Japanese official event for ROS developers : ROSCon JP

ROSCon JP is an event held each year for the local Japanese ROS community. It is an official Local ROSCon event, licensed by Open Source Robotics Foundation, Inc.

ROS (Robot Operating System) was originally developed by Willow Garage in the US. It's use case is not only academic fields, but also in industry. ROS is an open platform for robots and it is globally used.

Recently, ROS engineers' activities in our community are becoming more active. The ROSJP community group, our main study group, maintained its activities even during the time of COVID. The registered users in the ROSJP group is now more than 2500 people.

In 2022, IROS and ROSCon were held in Japan; this shows how energetic our community is.

For ROSCon JP this year, we are planning to make it an event to share knowledge about ROS, related libraries, tools and devices. There will be technical talks, sharing ROS best practices and new technologies, similar to the global ROSCon.

The conference site is a junction of industry and communication: Nagoya
